Ontario Heritage Trust

In 2025, Heritage Week will occur from February 16-22.

Each February, the Trust invites Ontarians to participate in Heritage Week in Ontario – to celebrate heritage in all its forms (cultural and natural, architectural, archaeological and collections), its diverse traditions and cultural expressions. Heritage Week provides a wonderful opportunity for individuals and communities to reflect on their contributions to Ontario, how heritage is conserved, promoted and commemorated, and how they might shape the future.

Since 1974, the third Monday every February has been identified as Heritage Day in Canada.

In 1985, the Ontario government designated the third week in February as Ontario Heritage Week, with the federal Heritage Day kicking off the week.

Many heritage organizations and municipalities have used Heritage Day and Ontario Heritage Week as vehicles to stimulate awareness of heritage resources and heritage-related issues within their communities, and to honour the organizations and volunteers who have worked to protect Ontario's irreplaceable heritage resources.

National Trust for Canada

Why celebrate Heritage Day? Because Canada's collective story is told through our special places, whether they are historic lighthouses or schools, places of faith, industrial complexes, or cultural landscapes. Our shared heritage in all its forms has the power to create a sense of belonging. Gathering places like town squares, and pow wow grounds, and cultural objects such as artifacts, regalia, and family memorabilia are tangible touchstones with the past that can root us in place and nourish the spirit. Intangible heritage – languages, traditional rituals, music, dance, storytelling, and more – is at the heart of family and community.

In celebration of our past and our future, we encourage all Canadians – young and old, deeply rooted or new to Canada – to celebrate our museums, historic sites, cultural landscapes and cultural centers, and connect with traditional knowledge keepers, educators, parents and grandparents to enjoy heritage on Heritage Day and beyond.

History of Heritage Day

In 1973, as a brand-new charity and not-for-profit entity, the National Trust named Heritage Day – the third Monday in February – as a national focal point for celebrating Canada's diverse heritage. Over the years, the Trust has worked with provincial heritage organizations and not-for-profits to set themes that we hoped would inspire local celebrations.

The National Trust for Canada continues to promote the celebration of Heritage Day nation-wide, and encourages governments and organizations to set themes that resonate for their part of the country. We invite you to contact your provincial/territorial heritage organization or provincial/territorial government department responsible for heritage to learn about regional plans for Heritage Day. Keep us posted on what you are up to, and don't forget to use the hashtag #HeritageDayCanada so that we can amplify your activities on Social Media.

Every year, Heritage Day is the third Monday in February!
